

Looking for Rabbi Versed in DARK TALMUDIC ARTS to create GOLEM.

WANTED:

One Rabbi versed in the Dark Talmudic Arts to create one Golem for household of three. Golem will perform rudimentary household chores such as dishes & sweeping, basic Math Tutoring for our daughter in 3rd grade and basic household security. Golem must be obedient and fairly unobtrusive on our every-day lives.

We will supply all materials needed (clay, twigs, calfskin parchment, etc) needed to create the Golem. All you need to do is use your magical ancient Rabbinic skills to animate said Golem!

Please note! We are looking for a Rabbi to create a Golem: an anthropomorphic being created from inanimate matter from Jewish folk-lore, NOT Gollum: a former Hobbit turned into monster and looking for "precious". This is important! We have no interest in living with Gollum. We want a Golem. Please respond, serious inquiry only.

Tales of the Talmud with Rabbi Nick Renner
Prayers and Pray-ers

Elijah the Prophet would come regularly to the academy of Rabbi Judah, the Patriarch.

One day—it was the day of the new moon—Elijah did not come to the prayers. When Elijah finally arrived, Rabbi Judah said, “Why was the master late?” Said Elijah, “Today is the new moon; so I awakened Abraham, washed his hands, waited for him to pray, and laid him back on his bed. Then, I awakened Isaac, washed his hands, waited for him to pray, and then laid him back in his bed. Finally, I did the same for Jacob—and by the time I had finished, there was no time left.”

“Why didn’t you awaken them all at the same time?” asked Rabbi Judah. Said Elijah, “I reasoned that if they all prayed together they would have the power to bring the Messiah before his time.”

Rabbi Judah asked, “And are there those in this world who are like Abraham, Isaac and Jacob?” “Yes,” said Elijah, “There is Rabbi Hiyya and his sons.”

Rabbi Judah decreed a fast because of drought and appointed Rabbi Hiyya and his sons to lead the prayers. Rabbi Hiyya recited “Mashiv haRuach,”<sup>1</sup> and the wind gusted. He recited, “u’Morid haGashem,”<sup>2</sup> and the rain came. When he was about to recite, “Mechayei haMeitim,”<sup>3</sup> the world trembled. They said in heaven, “Who has revealed mysteries in the world?” Others said, “It was Elijah.” They brought Elijah and struck him with the Pulsei d’Nura.<sup>4</sup> Elijah, in the guise of a fiery bear, came among them and scattered them.
